record guitar This tutorial will explain how to record with guitar and the steps required to create a final recording.

1. Pre-requisites When you record guitar, the first thing you need to do is make sure there are no ambient noises (no voices, no traffic, no computer noise, etc.) Then make sure that the microphone you use is plugged into the desired input jack. Note: The USB soundcard I use is a Behringer UCA202. Here's an easy recording technique for beginner musicians to discover. It's a lot of fun and is perfect for just sitting down with your favorite guitar and recording your own music.

2. Equipment Of course, there's nothing better than a guitar to start your recording session. This is a very portable setup, so you won't have to make any big purchases. Microphone I used: Rode NT-USB Condenser Mic—$200 Shure SM57—$50 Drum machine: Alesis DM-5 [Digital Delay Machine] Isolation plug: No output

3. Start recording When you are going to record, you need to be somewhere with good sound recording. I recorded in a completely empty room. If you want to record acoustic guitar, you need to set your recording equipment up so you can capture the sound. You should place the guitar in the center of the room and your mic at the correct distance in front of the speaker.

The present invention relates to dental flosses. More particularly, the present invention relates to a multiple size dental floss having a fixed length and shape. Current dental floss products, including dental floss, flossing thread, and fluff, include a small, yet fixed length, rigidly shaped plastic rod, or thread. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 4,606,927 and U.S. Pat. No. 4,849,165 disclose floss products that include an elongated rod having a flute or anvil at each end and a plurality of grooves along its length. The flute or anvil is used to wrap the floss material around the teeth and the grooves serve to feed the material around the teeth. However, these devices do not have the ability to flex to accommodate teeth of varying sizes and shapes. Additionally, the floss cannot be used to clean between and around the teeth, as the flute or anvil is too rigid. Thus, there is a need for a flexible multiple size dental floss that can be used to clean between and around the teeth, and flex to accommodate teeth of varying sizes and shapes.
